

Linda Fern

I was born in New York City at the start of WW II, and was raised in Woodhaven, Queens. After attending college for several years in upstate New York, I married and moved to Massachusetts. My daughter was born there. We moved to suburban Maryland and my son was born at that time. I lived in Maryland for many years, raised my children, completed college and grad school, and then worked for the federal court. In 2000, I remarried and in 2003, my husband Bill and I, retired to Bethany Beach, DE.

In 2005, I took my first painting course at Wilmington College in Rehoboth Beach. I have been watercolor painting ever since. I have taken many classes and courses all over the local area from Betty DeBoers, Tom Jones, Robert Chu, Sonia Hunt, Linda Minkowski, Barbara Schmid, and others. It has been wonderful to have this new experience at this time in my life. It is such a joy!

In addition to painting, I do scrapbooking and counted cross stitch. I also travel and have just returned from Kenya. My husband and I love to visit our eleven grandchildren (six of mine and five of his) who live in Pennsylvania, California, Florida and Maryland.
